As simple as a midsummer wedding should be, and as beautiful as a midsummer ceremony could be, such was the marriage ceremony of Miss May Jewett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Jewett, and Mr. Albert Edward Holmes, which was selemnized last Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents in Hyde park.

About 100 guests, including only relatives and intimate friends, assembled on the lawn to witness the ceremony, which was performed outdoors under the trees. The bride and groom stood in a bower of asparagus fern, while the Rev. Mr. Black, of Marshall. Mo., read the service. There were no attendants.

The bride's gown, of simple white organdic, was exquisitely dainty. It was worn over white taifets, and the diaphanous folds of the skirt were encircled by a number of narrow ruffles trimmed with rows of white satin haby ribbon. The low round bodice was composed entirely of rows of tiny tucks and ruffles edged with the baby ribbon, while the neck was bordered by soft white ruching. The sash was a handsome affair of gainfered Paris musin edged with the ruching. The bride, who is divinely fair, and has a most gracious hall. made a perfect dancing floor. Mr. and Mrs. Gates were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Marty, Mr. Whipple, Mr. Gillham.

The extreme duliness which has been a marked feature of society this summer was most pleasantly broken last week by a number of dances, dinners and luncheons. A number of these were occasioned by the return of Miss Marion Ess, accompanied by Miss Bradley, of New York, and Miss Angell, of Leavenworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry N. Ess gave a large dancing party for the young women Tuesday evening, when the entire lower floor of the hospitable Ess home on South Brooklyn avenue was handsomely decorated with flowers and given over to the dancers. Assisting in entertaining were Miss Lelia Christopher and Miss Margaret Murray. The guests were:

Miss Margaret Murray's progressive din-ner on Saturday for Miss Ess and her guests, Miss Bradley and Miss Angell, was a charming conclusion to a round of fes-tivities which made the week a very gay one for these winsome young women. The guests were sixteen in number, and were seated at four small tables, each daintily decked with sweet peas. The participants were:

Mr. Hal Whitehead, Mr. Robert Wood, Mr. Fred Rust, Mr. Bartlett Page, Mr. Edwin Litchfield, Mr. Paul Simonds, Miss Pas, Miss Angell, Miss Bradley, Miss Agnes Lee, Miss Anna Hopkins, Miss Anna Foard, Mr. Alfred Schauffler, Mr. Wallace Shields.

Mr. Alfred Schauffer,

Among the most delightful entertainments of the month may be numbered the house party entertained by Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Bayles, at "The Firs," Lee's Summit, the country residence of Mr. James A. Bayles, of Kansas City.

The guests of the week were Mrs. William Wainscott, of Nevada, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Silas F. Allen, Mr. Vineyard, Mr. and Mrs. David B. Page, Mr. Frank Lane and Mr. Edward Bayles.

Besides the enjoyment of the cool, shaded lawn, the flowers and fruits the place afferded, the daily argument over some phase of right living or right thinking, driving, fishing and swimming parties, target practice and kite flying, with evenings devoted to instrumental music, were among the diversions provided.

A programme was prepared for Sunday morning, August 14, All assembled "neath the cloistered boughs" and listened to the reading of an able sermon—in manuscript—by Rev. Mr. Hedrick, of Rich Hill. The reading was interrupted by remarks, and the idea that "God cannot pardon nor forgive" elicited much discussion.

All too soon came the hour of separation, but the memory of the thoughtful host, the brilliant hostess and genial com-

Mr. and Mrs. Dillard E. Pinkston brated their twenty-fifth wedding anniver-sary last Monday evening at their home in Hyde park. and little by little this sum has been reached, and the dimes and dollars are still flowing in.

Many letters are received from friends bearing best wishes for the success of the cause. "I have written three letters as requested and hope you may be successful in accomplishing the desired end," comes from Topeka; and "I cannot see how the chain could fail to be a success," writes one of our own townswomen. The following is a list of generously inclined friends who have contributed since August 14 more than the amount requested in sums running from 25 cents to 35. SHE RELENTED A BIT.

Willing on Second Thought to Help the Little Beggar in Her Own Way. rom the Washington Post. There have been visitors innumerable at the navy yard the past week, and when every car stops at the end of the road up every car stops at the end of the road up there its passengers are immediately surrounded by a crowd of the blackest, raggedest and most persistent little beggars in town. One day last week an elderly woman, with a look of determination in her eye, and a tinge of martial spirit in the wave of a feather on her bonnet, stepped from the car. A black little impimmediately capered up to her. He was attired in a pair of bicycle knickerbockers, evidently built originally for a tall and amply patterned man. Like their wearer, they had no visible means of support. He clutched them and gave them a neeiful hitch now and then, but the recklessness with which he danced about filled one with constant apprehension.

"Please, lady, gimme a penny," he said.
The martial plume did not bow.
"Run away, boy," said the elderly woman.

The amazing knickerbockers danced off and were half way across the street when the elderly woman called after them. "Come here, boy," she shouted. "Here is something for you."

The black imp ran toward her and held out his hand. out his hand.
"You need it, I think," said the elderly woman, significantly, and she handed him a large bright, shining safety pin.

FASHIONS AS THEY ARE DECREED BY EUROPE'S MOST NOTED AUTHORITIES.

on the coming styles in women's government of pressly by Europe's masters of fashion. Authentic articles in advance of their publication abroad. articles in advance of their publication abroad.

Descriptions of new gowns heretofore printed in American publications have been mere guesswork and generally inaccurate, but the great court modelers of Europe dictate the world's styles. THE SUNDAY JOURNAL will print exclusively in Kansas City each week adens of Italy, Servie, and Wurtemberg.

Beginning August 28, The Sunday Journal will present its readers with a series of illustrated articles on the coming styles in women's gowns, written expending the styles in women's gowns, written expensions and the styles in th son, of Berlin, the most exclusive designer of East-ern Europe; Ch. Drecoll, of Vienna, the greatest tailor made continuer in the world; Hirsch & Cle. of Brussels, to the court of Belgium; Harm, of The Hague, to the court of Holland; Emilia Bossi, of Florence, to the court of Italy; Jules Bister, of Ber-planes, and the court of Holland; Manning, of in, to the court of Germany; Alfred Manning, of Dublin, to the court of England; A. Izambard, of St. Petersburg, to the court of Russia; Ulimann & Strauss, of Frankfurt A. M.

Thus the readers of The Sunday Journal will be informed of the styles three months earlier that ever before. Each design and description will be signed.
